

The Mummy's Hand And Biggest Apple Fancy School Dress 2.75 B-7 Hardy

By Arthur Brisbane Copyright, 1921. A lady, ninety years old, has given to the Polytechnic Institute at Peoria, Ill., the hand of a female Egyptian mummy, believed to be the hand of Pharaoh's daughter that rescued Moses from the bulrushes and the water. It is a genuine mummy hand, probably of a royal personage. But nobody knows exactly who Pharaoh or which daughter rescued the baby that subsequently brought down the tablets of the law. It would be interesting if that withered hand had patted the head of little Moses, but that isn't the most interesting thing in the news.

The MOST interesting thing in the apple, "about the size of a green pail bucket," grown in a noble State of Washington by Fred L. Post. That apple, still on the tree and growing, will beat all world's records undoubtedly. Every boy that ever climbed, or knew sticks, and stone to get the last big red apple in the fall, would like to see that apple again.

The monster apple teaches various lessons-it hangs, weighing almost three pounds and a half. The "Home Beauty" tree has been especially well fertilized. Food is important to man and tree. A slight leak in an irrigation ditch nearby has water constantly drip to the roots. Sure important, highly gratifying to those that use birth control limitation, in the fact that Mrs. Post's tree, which might have borne hundreds of apples, carries only seventeen.

The others were carefully picked away before they had really started. As a result each of the seventeen apples remaining, with plenty of room, sunshine and air, weighs close to three pounds, and the biggest will be shown as the biggest apple ever seen in the world. The mother was so overworked and therefore could do her best.

How big do you suppose the apple was that Eve picked, alas, the day? Important to mothers is the suggestion that girls in public schools, high schools, especially, dress inconspicuously, and especially ECONOMICALLY. It is not a good thing for children in school, whether six or sixteen years old, to concentrate attention on clothes and use clothes of others. It is discouraging, harmful to poor children unable to dress like their more prosperous schoolmates.

An excellent thing for schools and school children would be some regulation dress, simple in cut and color, low in cost, within the reach of the poorer children. Richer parents should show common sense by sending a good example. In France, where very poor school children are fed by government, but none is allowed to wear fancy pay and which do not, "that is democracy. Parents that dress their children in fancy clothes, planting false standards in their minds."

A horse has just trotted a mile, driven by Tommy Murphy, in one minute and fifty-eight seconds, shattering the world's record. That would have meant a great deal a year ago to any human being. Today it interests only the few that remember Maud S., Jay and Uhlman, great trotters. One minute and fifty-eight seconds is a trifle better than the time it took a horse to keep it up for one mile only, and in thirty-five thousand dollars. For a few hundred dollars you can buy an automobile that will go as fast as that and faster, keeping it up all day and all night. Man's inventions beat nature.

The horse that made the record is a Pennsylvania. A Senator from New York and a Representative from Michigan, both Republicans, try to legalize female 2-5 bet that it may pay for or twelve dollars a barrel to government, and raise a thousand million dollars in revenue. If manufacture of male and female from the nation retelling of such a noble bet, were made legal, Congressmen believe it would solve the problem of taxation, also the bootlegging problem. But it is not likely that for years to come any such legislation will be passed. A citizen may manufacture 500 quarts of wine, or half a ton of alcoholic strength, in his own house. That is about as far as modification of prohibition will go for the present problem. It ought to make a good many people free in the country, raising grapes.

Mr. Davis, Secretary of Labor, is less worried than most men about lack of employment. Seven years ago there were seven million unemployed; today only five and three-quarters millions, according to his figures. He says: "Let us not forget the twelve millions still at work," and thinks many idle men are not actually dependent upon their earnings."

The lack of work problem affects not only men idle, but the whole nation. The sum of national prosperity and wealth is the sum total of production. Human machines make the only wealth, produce in the long run, and six millions of human machines idle mean something.

The people are a little less patient than they were. Some that used to seek the bread line now buy a gun. That's the trouble.

Youth and the Dog He Saved From Flames Seven-Year-Old Lynn Boy Rushes Through Smoke to Rescue His Pet When His Home Burns.

INVALID YOUNG SPRINGFIELD CARRIED TO SAFETY

Two Families Driven to Street as Flames Attack Factory and Dwellings in Lynn

Two families were driven to the street, an invalid woman was carried to safety, two women were injured, and damage estimated at over $100,000 was caused when the factory down the street was a carefully dropped cigarette started in a Lynn factory.

The flames started in the two-story frame factory building of the Lynn Lawless company at No. 19 West street. Quickly reaching the dry sawdust and shavings stacked up, it attacked the dwellings of Charles Hargrave, No. 3 Charles street, and Elmer Perzibough, No. 6 Charles street.

Norman Nodley, a seven-year-old boy, living at No. 3 West street, bravely rushed into the burning house and brought out his pet dog. Mrs. Chandler, occupying rooms at No. 3 Charles street, confined to her bed, was carried by friends from her bed to a house farther down the street when it was feared that the fire would spread to the house she was in.

Picture Star Won by Newton Youth in War Romance

HELENE CHADWICK.

The real story of the romance between beautiful Helene Chadwick, film star, and William A. Wellman of Newton, former ace of the Lafayette Escadrille, which culminated in their marriage at Hollywood, was revealed today. The romance began more than four years ago in New York at a dinner given to the famous pilot, who was invited home after bringing down six German airplanes, for which he received the Croix de Guerre.

On his arrival at New York, Wellman, who had been seriously injured by a falling plane, was met by his mother, Mrs. Celia Wellman of Newton, formerly of Riverbank, Ill. With the happy mother was a friend of her son's, George Selts, also of Newton, who was a motion picture actor. Selts gave a dinner to young Wellman.

At this dinner the aviator met Miss Chadwick, and it is said immediately fell in love with her. Later he transferred to the American service, was made a first lieutenant, and was assigned to Santiago, Cuba, as a special war tactics instructor. While at Santiago, young Wellman received further injuries, which prevented him from doing any further work.

TAGUE WILL ASK HOUSE PROBE OF KU KLUX

To Renounce Klan Activities as Anti-Jewish and Anti-
Catholic in Resolution

Washington, Sept. 15.—The New York American's story of the inner workings of the Ku Klux Klan and its secret operations was received here today with deep interest. Coming as they do from a former high officer of the Klan, the revelations in the American were the day's chief topic of discussion.

Congressional investigation of the Atlanta organization is promised by Representative Tague of Massachusetts.

Mr. Tague is preparing a resolution providing for an investigation by a special committee of the House of Representatives. He will introduce it when the House is reconvened for business on October 3. He said:

"I have received many complaints about the activities of the Ku Klux Klan. They are trying to organize throughout New England.

The organization is anti-Catholic, anti-Jew, anti-Negro and anti-American, and should be done away with. It is a scandal.

"If the light of publicity is turned upon the grotesque, fantastic, indecent acts and ceremonies of this intolerant organization, which presume to take the law into its own hands and hold sway through the appeal to superstition, it will be found that the sponsors have reaped a rich harvest.

"The organization parades itself as a revival of the original Klan. The members of the original Klan were self-governed by the laws of the organization. The new organization will cause nation-wide ridicule, under which it will shrivel up and disappear."

Catholics Target of Ku Klux Klan Plotters

New York, Sept. 15.—Revelations of the methods of the Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan, even more astonishing than those previously presented, are detailed by C. Anderson Wright.

Wright discloses a scheme by which Jews, Catholics and foreign born persons were to be banished or exterminated.

Former Klan Member, Invisible Empire, Ku Klux Klan, and Chief of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

New York, Sept. 15.—The New York American has grown by leaps and bounds since it was formed last February, with only 150 members. It now boasts 15,000 members in the greater city.

This has meant a rich haul for the New York officials, as well as Imperial Klansman Edward Young Clarke and the Imperial Palace, as can easily be ascertained.

Edward P. Campbell, grand knight and acting Klan Klansman, at 50 cents and $1 a head, or $150 a head, $250 a head, Edward Young Clarke and Mrs. Elizabeth Young's propaganda department.

Ex-Grand Goblin, Who Exposes Ku Klux Machinations

Imperial Treasury (also controlled by Clarke) at $150 a head, $250 a head.

Vastness of Klansmen (estimated) at $4 a head, $50,000.

A grand total of $150,000.

No war tax is paid on any part of the initiation fee. Clarke has very cleverly worked the application forms and receipts to members to make it appear that the fees are "donations" instead of initiations.

I have told something of the plot to drive the Jews of New York from America. That was only one feature of the plan of campaign here.

The Catholics were the next in line to be sacrificed on the altar of the Invisible Empire. With that plan I shall deal in full later.

Being arrayed against the Catholics, it was not within the scope of the leaders of the organization to approach Commissioner Straight with invitations to become a member of the Ku Klux Klan. Had he been eligible to membership, he would have been among the first of the officials of New York to be solicited.

"I fear Klansmen, Mr. Emperor and Fellow Klansmen:

"It is one of the proudest moments of my life to be able to tell this outside how the Klan was received in New York City.

"We were received with open arms by the 100 per cent citizens of New York, but, both fortunately and unfortunately, the city administration and police department are headed by Catholics.

"I learned in the nick of time that at the request of Mayor Hiram, Police Commissioner Straight had had a warrant issued for my arrest and were planning to secretly surprise me and throw me in jail before our friends could prevent it.

"Straight had given to the press statements that he was waiting to see if the Klan was organized in New York, under instructions from the Mayor and with the support of Assistant District Attorney Tully.

"The reporters waited with us, but when Police Commissioner Straight was tipped off that the reporters were waiting with me, he called in the warrant, being afraid of public sentiment and opinion.

Clarke went on to say that with Straight's property seized in the manner described, he, Clarke, was able to avoid with his work of organization without molestation from the police or other authorities, and that two nights later the first class was initiated, composed of 100 of New York's representative citizens from all walks of life.

Clarke repeated his statement about Straight so often that I am convinced he actually came to believe it himself. In each repetition of the story he increased the number of members initiated at the first meeting, until it reached the stupendous total of 10,000.

Other details were similarly exaggerated as time went on. In the later telling of the story, Straight was said to have approved it if not terrified, by Clarke and the Invisible Empire, that the first New York Klan initiated, at which I myself was a candidate, did not exceed 250 men.

The meeting was held in one of the larger rooms in Madison Square. Twenty-third street and Third Avenue, where capacity was not more than 100 men. The room was well filled.

PELLETIER READY TO PROSECUTE KU KLUX

Seeks Evidence on Circulation
of False Knights of Columbus Oath

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier today announced that his office was prepared to prosecute the Ku Klux Klan for criminal libel if evidence came into possession of the authorities here that the "Invisible Empire" had been circulating a false Knights of Columbus oath.

He invited persons having such information to turn it over to him.

Superintendent of Police Michael J. Crowley said today that his department has not discovered any activities of the Ku Klux Klan in Boston.

Leaders in business and professional life have also declared that the Klan has not been gaining any headway here.

"If the organization is working in Boston," said Superintendent Crowley, "we have not come across it. Not even a piece of their literature has come in our hands."

ALWAYS ON GUARD.
"We are ever on the alert for secret organizations that might be dangerous to the public peace and to the safety of the State," said Joseph C. Pelletier, president of the Federal Trust Company, said he hoped the Ku Klux Klan would not gain a foothold in Boston; that it is an organization contrary to the American Constitution.

"I have not seen any evidence of the Klan being in Boston," said Mr. O'Neill, "but I doubt whether it would gain much of a headway here, if its organizers should come here. The people of Boston would not stand for it."

CUSTOMS LAW EXPERT FLAYS FORDNEY BILL

Passage of Tariff Measure Would Bring Storm of Protest, Lockett Declares

"Congress will bring upon itself the utmost condemnation of the people of the United States. If it passes the Iniquitous Fordney tariff bill, with its American valuation provisions," declared Joseph D. Lockett, an expert on customs law, today in a statement opposing the proposed legislation.

The bill has passed the House of Representatives and is now before the Senate, but every day of delay in action by the upper house means the groundswell of protest rises higher and higher. Merchants all over the country are flooding Congress with demands that the bill be rejected. "If Congress had announced the intention to increase the ad valorem high rates of duty provided for in the old Payne-Aldrich Law by 100 to 300 per cent, a storm of protest would have been raised throughout the country. And yet, this is exactly what the Fordney bill will do by its direction. If the American valuation plan so-called, now a part of it, becomes a law.

"For example, a certain commodity in the Fordney bill takes a rate of 25 per cent. Applying this rate to the present American selling price of the commodity in question it results in a rate of duty equal in over 100 per cent. In excess of the Payne-Aldrich rate. This is but one of the many cases; usually the increase in rates is far in excess of 100 per cent. This fact has not been very fully advertised by the proponents of the measure. It must be assumed that they know it.

WOULD PROHIBIT IMPORTS. "The effect of these high rates of duty will be to practically prohibit imports. Furthermore, it will be with in the province of the American manufacturer to sell his goods at such a high price that it will be impossible for the importer to make a profit on the goods which will enable him to compete fairly with the American manufacturer. Whether foreign merchandise is restricted or imported under such conditions it is obvious that the consumer will have to pay the excessive tax which will go into the pocket of the American manufacturer.

"The consumer, who is now overburdened with high prices and taxes, is looking for some relief. To enact the American valuation plan at this particular time would be the height of folly and would bring upon those responsible for such action the utmost condemnation by the people of the country because in the last analysis it is the best interests.

of all the people which must be considered. "It is difficult to comprehend why this revolutionary change in the customs administrative law has been suggested with so little affirmative evidence in support of it. "If the members of Congress really desire an honest, impartial, unswayed and unprejudiced opinion as to how this plan is likely to work out in practice why do they not call before them for consultation and advice the men who are real experts upon this question. I refer to the examiners of merchandise in the offices of the U. S. appraisers throughout the country. The work of administering the law will fall upon these men. "The thousands of decisions interpreting the law as it has stood in the interpretation of the American valuation law. With respect to such imports as would come under the American valuation plan, the question of value would be litigated in nearly every instance.

NEED ACTION FOR NEW ENGLAND RAILROADS

Congressman Winslow Tells Chamber What Must Be Done to Revive Industry Here

United action to rehabilitate New England's railroad and shipping facilities is needed at once if the industries of this section of the country are to be revived and placed in a condition to compete successfully with interests in other parts of the country. Congressman Samuel W. Winslow of Worcester told 400 members of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce at the close of their four day inspection around Boston Harbor on the steamer How Standish. The trip was attended by secretaries of chambers of commerce throughout New England, many city and state officials, including

Governor Calkins. Winslow was paid in New York, New England was paid in New England. Winslow, who is chairman of the House Committee on Interstate Commerce, declared that through the slump the roads all of our industry suffered. It is the Statesmen to get together and find a way out. Split the problem. Statement of New England railroads and industry.

Only seven patients were in the building at the time and all escaped without difficulty.

CURTIS VICTOR IN BATTLE FOR STATION SITE

Court Orders City Council to Comply With Demand of Commissioner

Police Commissioner Curtis was a slight triumph in his controversy with the City Council over the selection of a site for a new police station for Division 1 by a decision handed down by the Supreme Court today.

He had petitioned the court to compel the council to take some action toward providing him with an acceptable site.

The decision, which was written by Chief Justice Rugg, instructed the council to "forthwith take action to provide a site, containing not less than 5,737 square feet," which was the amount of land demanded by Curtis.

The Supreme Court further declared that responsibility in the matter rested solely with the commissioner and that the City Council's function was merely to furnish him with such a site as he desired.

The feud had its origin in the purchase of a site at Hawley and Arch streets by order of the City Council. Curtis promptly rejected it, saying it was too small. He recommended a site at 20th and Sears street, which could be obtained for $41,000 less than the Hawley street land. The affair then developed into a case of stalemate. Today's decision does not order the council to pick any particular site, but it is regarded as eliminating the Arch and Hawley street plot.

SWIG OPENS HIS FIGHT FOR PUBLIC

Tomorrow Night in Mechanics Hall Will Tell of "Bank Conspiracy"

"The fight is on," said Simon Swig, vice-president of the Tremont Trust Company, in announcing the first of a series of meetings to be held in Mechanics Hall Saturday night, at which he plans to reveal what he characterizes as a conspiracy to rob the people by the bankers.

Swig declared that he would present facts and figures, and that at the conclusion of the meetings he would make a tour of New England in his fight to obtain "the rights of the people."

"I shall tell things that no one except the bankers and bank commission ever knew," Swig declared. "They will be the most interesting stories ever told from a public platform in the history of Massachusetts. They concern every man, woman and child in Massachusetts, and as many as possible should attend the meetings. There will be no generalities but real facts with evidence statements will startle the state. It will not be as usual because abuse is no argument."

"A rank of the people is to come to Mechanics Hall and learn how they have been robbed. I have also invited the bank commissioner and some of the bankers."

Fresh From Paris Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France. The very spirit of the ten-dance is embodied in a graceful little frock of amber satin and black Chantilly lace, sketched at the left. Its full lace tunic falls in points front and back, and the skirt itself is ankle deep, with that satin undershirt very neatly as long. An abbreviated cut of satin, designed to complete the lace dance frock, makes a good deal of its deep table cuffs and twice as much of its collar, and the effect is very worth the time Paris is making over this sort of wrap.

SWIMS MILE AND HALF TO SAVE 3 COMPANIONS

Twenty-one-year-old Kenneth Sutherland, son of Reynold H. Sutherland, assistant superintendent of the Lynn water works, swam a mile and a half for assistance after he and three other companions, one a girl, had been thrown in the water when their catboat capsized two miles off Kings Beach, Swampscott.

The rescued were twelve-year-old Marjorie Phillips of No. 11 Greenwood avenue, Swampscott; Glover Stevens, nineteen, of No. 52 Humphrey street, Swampscott; and Raymond Constant, twenty-two, of Cliffside.

The catboat, which was capsized during a wind squall which accompanied a heavy thunder shower, fortunately all could swim. Sutherland assisted the Phillips girl to obtain a hold on the overturned hull of the boat. Fearing that the fast closing darkness would prevent their being seen or their shouts heard, Sutherland volunteered to swim the two miles to shore for assistance.

He had covered a mile and a half and was in an exhausted condition when he was seen by Marshall Kane of No. 85 Rockland avenue, Swampscott, who was cruising in his motorboat. Kane, accompanied by two others, speeded to the assistance of the three marooned people and brought them ashore.

WORKERS' BOARD GOVERNS A. E. LITTLE SHOPS

Millionaire Shoe Man Takes Another Step in "Program of Humanization"

A. E. Little, millionaire shoe manufacturer employing 3,500 persons in Lynn and the same number in Brockton, today announced another step forward in his "humanization program," when he turned over the management of his plants to a committee of employees, now called the governing board.

However, all questions decided solely by the heads of the A. E. Little Company will be acted upon by this committee and Mr. Little will simply sit in an advisory capacity. As Mr. Little put the plan it is to eliminate the normal provision "I." This announcement comes on the heels of a recent decision to place the Little farm in Marlborough on a co-operative basis with the factory workers. Over 1,000 acres of richly cultivated land in Marlborough is owned by Little, and garden produce, milk and poultry are turned out in large quantities.

A store has been opened on the farm in Lynn as a co-operative store where the employees may buy all their table supplies at cost plus a deduction, resulting in a big saving to them over current retail prices.

Little said the farm was "God-given and now it belongs to the employees of the A. E. Little Company. It is no longer 'my farm' but 'their farm.'"

Little said shares have begun to adjust their prices on a closer margin of profit in an effort to realize some of the Little factory trade.

The new governing committee decides upon all matters of policy as to production and sales, labor and extension or retrenchment.

Records of meetings and actions are sent to Mr. Little, but he says he has faith in his employees to run the business along profitable lines.

Preparations are now under way at the factory for an old-fashioned

Middlesex Employees Threaten Drastic Action Over Wage Settlement

Employees of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Co. threaten to take drastic action as a result of a settlement proposed by General Manager H. H. Hanson that commencing today, when in pay day, the company will deduct $1 a week from the men's earnings until such time as the men agree to a wage increase of 15 per cent. The men declare the proposed action makes no mention of the back wages which the company failed to pay because of its financial condition.

Both employees and company admit they owe each other money. The dispute who should pay first has been one-sided ever since the wage reduction.

HAPGOOD SEES HARMONY AT ARMS PARLEY

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.
(Staff Correspondent of the Boston American)
[Editorial note: I will not venture to represent here, as the Washington conference on "Frontiers of Naval Armament and on American Progress, November 11, the returned visit is likely to be correct and well-merited. Mr. Hapgood and Mr. Hapgood have been tried out in many a preceding debate, and the other two debaters represent the department of the conference in a manner that is a relief to debate and neither Lord Curzon nor Mr. Winston Churchill on the list, but only are these two gentlemen arrogant and aristocratic and headstrong, but they are full of important convictions that would have made it difficult for them to refrain from pushing to keep the British navy as big as possible in relation to sea.]

STILL BE HARMONIOUS.
With the list as it is tentatively set out at present there is no reason why it should not have entirely harmonious relations with the American delegation. The only obstacle to this is its ability to live.

Larz Andersons Motoring Through Berkshires

By BETTY ALDEN.
The news that Larz Anderson and Mrs. Larz Anderson, who have been at the Hotel Lincoln for some time, are motoring through the Berkshires, planning to return to their home at the capital late in October.

The former ambassador to Japan and his charming wife are so well known here that their coming and going are always of interest. Both in the Berkshires and in the Berkshires, where they have a home at No. 218 Massachusetts street, they are well known for their interesting entertainments.

Their Washington home, by the way, boasts of a splendid ballroom, where were held many of the affairs which furnished the clever epitome of Mr. Anderson with material for "Presidents and Peas." The latter is a volume of anecdotes and impressions of Washington social life, personalities and politics as seen by Mrs. Anderson. This book, published last year, is but one of the several literary works which have won a reputation for the author.

Mrs. Anderson has made a trip to Brookline when the "Well" was open to the public gaze, for this estate is one of the most magnificent and picturesque in the vicinity of Boston. Well does the visitor remember its many beauties, its small garden, its sloping terraces, Japanese and Italian gardens, and the raised walks, which one may obtain even a occasionally good view of the estate itself and the neighboring country.

Mrs. Richard D. Brown of Beacon street at the North Shore is at the Hotel Lincoln, where she is in the Berkshires, where she is in the Berkshires, where she is in the Berkshires.

The White Mountains continue to attract many visitors for the season. Mayor Peter and Mrs. Peter are among the prominent Bostonians who are at the Mount Pleasant Hotel, where the Mayor is before the National Tax Association, where the Mayor is before the National Tax Association.

A country fair with freaks, Punch and Judy shows, riding parties for the rich and the poor, and other amusements, will be given at the Hotel Lincoln, where the Mayor is before the National Tax Association.

There is no question of voting control as there was at Paris. It makes no difference how many delegates of how many delegations there are before the conference. It is merely a question of the number of delegates, and the number of delegates, and the number of delegates.

It is a fair guess that Mr. Bonar Law will be the bulk of the reaction work for the British government at Washington, with Mr. Hapgood furnishing the strategy.

Mr. Law represents the War Department and Lord Lee the navy. They would presumably be used more for technical details than for participation in general policy.

The last leaves untouched the question of the colonies. A good deal of important comment has been printed on this aspect of the conference.

With Mr. Bonar Law, the creator of the conference, not as the whole responsibility for success, as far as this country is concerned, is left with the conservative wing of the Republican party. This is partly as well as the Progressive Republicans and have no recent record of failure, and in that case they will continue to follow the party.

GALLON TANK IN CHARLESTOWN

Residents of Hayes Square Claim It Would Be a Menace to the District

Charges and counter-charges will be submitted to Mayor Powers today when a dedication of Charlestown residents, residing in the vicinity of Hayes square, march upon City Hall today to protest against the granting of a permit for the construction of a 1,000-gallon gasoline tank and a two-story garage on Edgeworth street, Charlestown, by the General Baking Company.

The permit has been allowed by the Street Commissioners, but the delegation will urge the Mayor to veto the commissioners' action.

Frank B. Shepard, vice-president of the company, has issued a statement in which he denies that the construction of the garage will increase danger to the children of the district.

He points out that at present the company has twenty-five trucks which are forced to travel back and forth between the plant and the present garage through a thick residential district. These trips would be eliminated by the construction of the proposed garage, he says.

He also asserts the idea that the presence of the gasoline tank would be a menace to the neighborhood. "Would we be likely to increase the danger to our half million dollar plant?" he asks.

Doorn, Holland, Sept. 16.—The strong feeling against the ultra conservatives in Germany which has manifested itself since the recent murder of Matthias Erzberger is believed here to be the cause of several members of the Hohenzollern family leaving Germany and coming to Doorn, where they are expected to remain with former Emperor William until they consider last conditions in Germany are favorable to their return.

The emperor's daughter, formerly Princess Victoria Louise, now the Duchess of Brunswick, accompanied by the Duke and their children, arrived here yesterday.

With them also was former Prince Adalbert, third son of the emperor. Former Princesses Frieda and Oscar are expected here shortly. It is understood

"Wet" Forces Prepare to Seek Modified Law in Congress

Washington, Sept. 16.—The liquor fight is to be renewed when Congress meets again. The drinks are being poured today for a fight and both sides are preparing. It is to be the issue over which the liquor forces will clash.

The "wet" forces in Congress want a modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of beer and soft drinks with a properly regulated tax situation. Many formerly dry members of Congress are turning to the approval of the first step out of the serious revenue situation with which the administration is confronted.

Revenue experts have produced figures showing that by imposing a tax of 15 a barrel on 75 per cent of the national treasury would be enriched by anywhere from $50,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 a year—a sum far more than sufficient to ease the tax situation and solve the administration problem.

Senator Walter Republican, of New York, will introduce such a measure in the form of an amendment to agriculture legislation. Its adoption would nullify the beer action of the Volstead act.

KELLY TIRES

There are few more uncomfortable feelings than the sensation of skidding or the constant dread of it when sudden showers convert the dry asphalt pavements into dangerous highways. Once you have ridden on the new Kelly Kant-Slip Cord over slippery streets, you will experience a feeling of safety that will double the joy of motoring. And best of all this tire will deliver the great mileage you generally get from a Kelly.

The exhaustion of war-priced materials and the economies made possible in its great new plant have enabled the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. to reduce prices drastically.

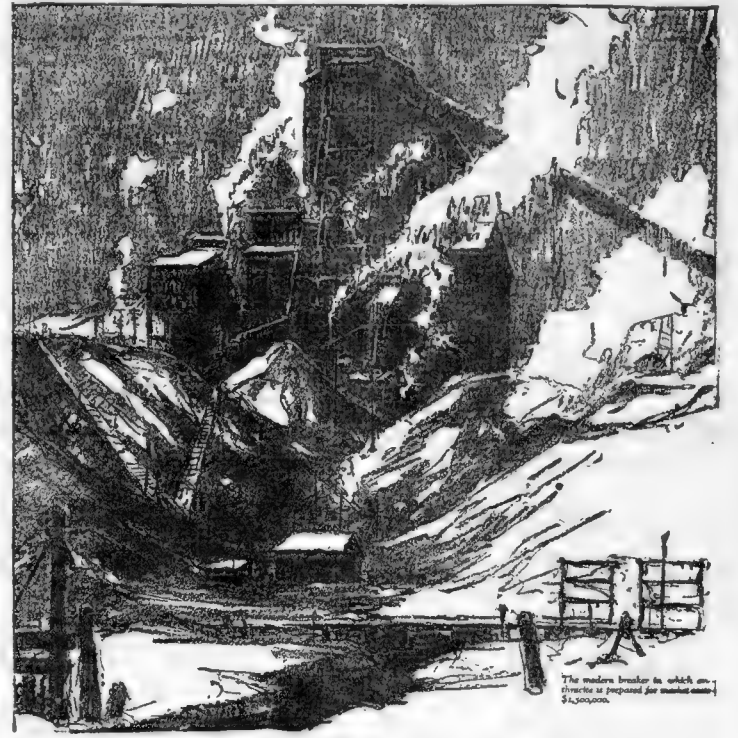

Now you can buy Kellys for the same prices you will have to pay for other tires that have always sold for less.

The quality of Kelly products is better than ever. The only cut is in the price.

It's Your Right to Know if Coal Prices are Wrong

Is the price of anthracite coal unfair? The public is entitled to all the facts. Here are some of them as they relate to the price of anthracite at the mine. Others will follow.

Trace the course of a dollar spent today for anthracite. The price situation unfolds as you go forward. For example, the mine owner takes the dollar and puts it to work.

The first call upon it—and therefore mentioned first—comes from mine workers. They take approximately 65 cents of it for wages. Wages are fixed by the 1920 award of the U. S. Anthracite Coal Commission, decreasing that the scale remain in force until March 31, 1922.

Thirty five cents of the dollar is now available. To be spent how? Fifteen cents goes for various supplies necessary in maintaining the mine, its breakers and pumping plants. Not a penny of profit clings to the mine owner in these purchases.

The dollar now is down to twenty cents. These go for insurance, taxes, selling expense, depletion, depreciation of plant and equipment—and such uninsurable risks as strikes, mine fires and floods. What remains is the "margin" out of which the profit must come.

The U. S. Federal Trade Commission says: "Margin must not be confused with what is often called profit. Selling expense, interest, income and excess profit taxes, as well as other items, must be deducted from it before the net profit available for dividends or surplus from the operation can be determined."

What Is the Anthracite Producers' Profit PER TON?

The facts as established by the U. S. Federal Trade Commission are published broadcast. They are known to all men. Anthracite owners' "margins," according to that authority were less than 39 cents per gross ton in 1918. This represented operations producing 95 per cent of the total tonnage of fresh-mined anthracite.

From 1913 to 1918 inclusive (covering the war period), the margin on which mine owners depended for profit was 42.8 cents per ton. From this had to be paid interest, selling expenses, Federal taxes, etc., before anything was available for dividends.

In other words, whatever the price you paid for coal—say $7 to $14—the mine owner on the average never retained more than 43 cents per ton on your total coal bill. This shows that there were no inflated war-time profits.

Today the average "margin" in the anthracite region does not exceed 60 cents a ton. The operator is fortunate whose margin approximates that figure. Only a few exceed it, most of them make less, and many are operating at a loss.

BABE RUTH SAYS HE'S NOT THROUGH YET MAKING HOMERS

By BABE RUTH
59 home runs to date 1921.
New York, N. Y., Sept. 15.—I'm not through yet. Having previously tied my home-run record at Philadelphia, the greatest crowd in the history of the Polo Grounds expected to see me hit up a new record last Sunday. But you can't knock home runs when others deliberately pass you five times in an afternoon.

After plugging away all week I was finally rewarded in my double-header with the St. Louis Browns yesterday. No. 55 is in, but I want to say that I am not through yet and won't be until the ninth inning of my closing game, October 5.

Till never forget yesterday's thrill. Next season I might knock 100 or if the Yankees clinch, their present lead I might be conspicuous in the coming world series. But I never expect another baseball thrill like Thursday.

The minute "Lefty" Byrne let go of the ball I said to myself "here comes No. 55." It was the funniest home run I ever experienced. My arms and legs and toes all seemed to sense what was going to happen.

Even Blumer Miller, on base at the time, seemed to catch the spell and started for the old home plate as though he had a guarantee I would deliver.

Then the big thump and the fans out loose. I never heard such whooping. I never saw so many stray hairs falling through the hair of the men all I ever received such a reception as the boys gave me in the dugout. Take it from me that was the thrill that counted.

Fans who have followed my home run progress are undoubtedly now asking two questions—how many more will be left and how can he repeat next year?

Answering the first query recalls what I hear so often that I was foolish for making so many last season. That I ought to have stopped around forty to make it easy this year. I guess these same fellows think I ought to stop now to make it easy for next year.

Well, I might be foolish, but I'm getting a lot of fun out of hitting as much as possible and at the same time I'm on the level with the fans. I might get six more or I might get none, but I'll keep my fingers crossed that pennant goes to Cleveland or New York.

All season through these columnists have answered questions from fans. Now it's my turn to ask one. I'd like to know how many fans in Boston would gamble on me to win the pennant next year.

Of course, since yesterday thousands are saying, "I told you so," but I have a hunch that some of these fellows were gambling my way last April and counting me out in May.

It's not so very long since some of the folks were grooming my friend, George Kelly, for the home-run crown.

I don't blame the fans. I had a tough underdogging ahead of me this year and realized it. Next year it may be tougher.

Just just out of curiosity I would like to have said to that crowd at the Polo Grounds yesterday, "Every fan who thinks I will hit up a new record in 1921 put on his right hand and for myself, I'll bet on it. Careless of my total for the present season, I'll be out to smash the mark in 1922."

OF COURSE RUTH DID IT

Babe Just Naturally Hits Home Runs Cobb, Twilight Baseball and Dundee

By JACK CONWAY
Babe Ruth broke his own major league home run record when he smashed out his fifty-fifth circuit drive of the season in a game against St. Louis. This was not startling news to readers of this column. Back in April we stated that Ruth just naturally hits home runs and that he would surpass his own remarkable record before the season ended. The most colorful player in baseball will continue making home runs between now and the time the baseball season closes. He will probably set up a mark which no other player than himself could ever approach.

Kelly and Meusel have also very creditable home run totals. If they were not overshadowed by the spectacular Ruth these two men would be hailed as the hitting marvels of the age. When Kelly was getting the home runs in April and May, the Boston Globe declared the Giants' star would outshine Ruth. We were criticized rather severely in some quarters when we ventured the opinion that Kelly's home run total would look rather weak once Ruth got started. Time has vindicated this opinion. Clump tells whether it is in baseball or any place else.

Do not forget Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers. In the circle of home run record, the great Georgian got two hits in Thursday's game against the Red Sox. One of his three men on base. Ty no longer dives headlong into a base as he used to do back in 1917, but he still displays enough all-around ability to thrill the fans every time he gets to the ball field.

James Hardy of Dorchester is very indignant because we intimated in this column that some of the baseball players are in poorer condition than the national pastime. We regret exceedingly if we have injured Mr. Hardy's peace of mind. No sport, however, that is

A Style Classic

THIS young man picked the "Stylid," from the 5 Foot Style Shelf in my window, and it certainly is a Style Classic.

The color hit his eye first. It was a "Silver Birch." He liked the new bow and the wide silk band. But the Style Feature that appealed to him most was the saucy tilt to the new Hand-Welted Box Curl.

He wanted the whole Style Story in One Volume and he got it in the "Stylid," and you can tell the world that he couldn't buy any more style at any price.

You can put all the Hat Wisdom in this town under your bonnet in five minutes if you look at the Five Style Classics on my Five Foot Style Shelf. I'll show you five models that will cover every head and fit every face but it would take a whole window to show every color in every shade.

I've got all the colors in an Autumn woodland scene. The hats in my window are displayed in Color Units. You'll see a little group of Silver Birch, a cluster of Golden Chestnut and a collection of Sugar Maple, Honey Locust and Walnut Brown.

TAD JONES HEAD COACH AT YALE IN REALITY AS WELL AS NAME

By CHARLES E. PARKER

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 16.—They removed the "bull" from the Bull Dog.

At least such is the impression one gains through a visit to Yale's football quarters in the Yale athletic armory and on the gridiron, adjacent thereto.

A modest, unassuming, yet very determined, captain heads the squad this year, and the attitude of their leader seems to be reflected in the attitude of the team.

In fact it is reported that not one of their number has sought to go to the coaches on matters of coaching.

To the last man they are pulling for Yale, and appear anxious to gain the instruction that will best fit them to represent the blue and the golden.

There are a number of innovations in this year's coaching system of New Haven.

First off Tad Jones is head coach in reality, as well as in name. He has limited his staff of variety assistants to two men, namely, Taylor and Charlie Cornfield, neither of whom boasts coaching experience.

But both of whom, under Jones' guidance, show considerable promise as gridiron instructors.

It will be a Tad Jones team, from end to end and from center to back, next season and Tad will stand or fall on its record.

Another innovation of equally great importance is the introduction of a real offensive line.

Heretofore there have been second team squads at Yale, but they have been so weak that they have been known to be "beaten" by the first team.

This year Dr. Duff, the team coach, has been given a staff of four coaches, and a new staff of four coaches, and a new staff of four coaches.

Still another of the innovations is the limitation in numbers of the varsity squad. Last year, according to one of the coaches, twenty-two ends, and proportionately larger numbers of candidates for other positions were carried for many weeks on the varsity squad.

This year the squad already has been pared down to a select few, and where there were ten in the end last year, there are now only three.

The quality of the squad, however, is of a high standard, and the coaches are confident that the team will be a great deal better than last year's.

For guards there are Frank, John Mackay, a sub tackle of last season, right half, of the varsity, and Hilder and Davis of the second freshman team, each of whom is being groomed for a guard position.

TAD'S TIDBITS

OLD MAN KILBANE TAKES A CHANCE.

Tomorrow afternoon at Dunn Field, in Cleveland, Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion of the world, will risk his title in a twelve-round bout against Harry Frush, the clever Irish English boxer.

This will be the first fight in which Kilbane has risked his championship since he stopped George Chenev at three rounds of boxing way back in 1914.

Kilbane will draw $50,000, win, loss or draw and enter the ring at catchweights.

Frush, on the other hand, will be forced to weigh in at 125 pounds and accept $2,500 for his end, win, loss or draw.

Frush is no stranger by any means. He has appeared in New York quite often and beaten some of our best featherweights. He has boxed in Philadelphia, San Francisco and many other big towns.

He will not be the favorite in the betting, but is quite a dangerous lad.

Frush at twenty-two is better than he ever was in his life. He has a chance here that others would pay his money for.

HARDWICK GIVES LECTURE ON TACKLING

Famous 'Tacks' Tells Harvard Football Squad How Ned Mahan Did It

Tuck Hardwick, famous Harvard back and end, took charge of the Harvard varsity football squad yesterday afternoon and gave them a talk on tackling and interference as played by those past masters, Hardwick, Mahan and Munn.

His poppy talk and savage attacks, on the tackling dummies, inspired the men to make the best tackles that they have shown this year.

Charlie Tierney, sub center in the Yale game last fall and only regular still missing, returned to the field yesterday afternoon and was put through a light workout by Coach Dwyer.

At the start of practice yesterday afternoon, Coach Dwyer announced four tons of a struggle for the day, they are subject to change at any time, but look fairly permanent. They follow:

—Ends, Kane and Crocker; tackles, Lockwood and Hubbard; guards, Brown and Brodsky; center, Kankowsky; quarter, Bell; backs, Chapin and Gravelles; full, Owen.

—Line, Mahan and Hardwick; tackles, Henry and Hohenberg; guards, Brown and Brodsky; center, Kankowsky; quarter, Bell; backs, Chapin and Gravelles; full, Owen.

JOHNNY WILSON'S LABOR DAY BOUT MONEY PUT IN A DEPOSITORY

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 16.—The New Jersey Commission adopted a resolution endorsing Johnny Wilson of Boston, "oldtime" boxing champion, of failure to put forth his best efforts in his bout with Bryan Downey of Cleveland, in this city, on Labor Day.

The commission voted to place Wilson's share of the purse in a depository pending final disposition of the case.

Wilson told the commission that he was on the chin in the first round of the bout but kept him in a dazed condition for five rounds. He further declared that the crowning position assumed by Downey through the encounter failed to give him an opportunity to do much boxing.

Charles that Wilson's seconds had warned him from the corner to be cautious were vehemently denied by Henry Myers and Harry Kelly, who handled the champion. Kelly declared he had told Wilson to try to get Downey up from his crouching position.

Wilson, in his statement, declared he thought he was the aggressor through it the bout and fulfilled his duty of the commission on pointed out that previous testimony showed that he had not saved time.

Chairman Roberts said after the hearing that personally, he had been willing to let the matter drop, but the nine two members of the Commission insisted upon the resolution and it was finally adopted unanimously.

A Letter for Young Writers

How Can Young Newspaper Men Make Themselves Useful?

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Professor Thomas E. Steward, teaching Journalism at Dartmouth College, writes:

No. 21 North Main Street, Hanover, N. H.
Dear Sir:—In conducting a course in Journalism at Dartmouth College I have hit upon the notion that the value of the course and the interest of the students would both be increased if I could get straight-forward letters of advice to prospective newspapermen from some of the outstanding figures in American Journalism. Are you willing to write a message to my young men? I do not mean of course, for you to write anything as long as to be a burden to yourself. But I do feel that in the space of an ordinary letter you could tell us something premissibly worth while.

Yours very truly,
THOS. E. STEWARD

Newspaper work outside of the business and mechanical department consists in telling the people what has happened or what others, including the editor, think.

This work of spreading news and opinions can be done in written words or with pictures.

The news picture being the reporter and the cartoon the editor in the newspaper world of artists. You know how much more quickly than words pictures reach the mind of the average human being. Observe the growth of the motion picture industry, as compared with the speaking stage.

The business of every newspaper worker is: "See a thing clearly and describe it simply."

The "thing" may be a dog fight or it may be an abstract idea. The formula to "see it clearly and describe it simply" sounds extremely simple, and it is the most difficult thing in the world.

Among a hundred eyewitnesses of an event, you will not find two to describe it in the same words or in the same way, to give the same idea of it. And among a hundred you will rarely find one really able to DESCRIBE anything.

Let the young writer bear in mind that, without overdoing his comparisons, he must rely more or less on comparison in conveying an idea. Ask a man: "How big does the full moon look to you?" He cannot answer except by some comparison—"As big as a dinner plate," or "As big as my dining room table," or "A little bigger than a silver dollar."

You know probably that the moon that we all see does not look exactly alike to any two people on earth.

We should advise young men studying Journalism, and doubtless their teachers all advise them, to study comparisons in the work of the really great writers. Ask the ordinary young American to describe jealousy, and his literary effort would run probably as follows:

"Gee, it's something fierce."

Byron, a little more explicit, said it was "As though the dead could feel the icy worm around them steal, and shudder as the reptiles creep to revel or their rotten steel, without the power to scare away those cold consumers of their day."

Shakespeare, whose of whose life was made bitter by the whims of a young woman at court, found a good comparison. Rather than endure the pangs of jealousy, he would rather be a toad and live upon the vapors of a dungeon than share a corner in the heart of one I love."

King Solomon, with the help of divine inspiration, in writing his song, resorted to comparison in describing jealousy, and did it well.

"Jealousy is cruel as the grave; the coals thereof ARE coals of fire, WHICH HATE a man's most vehement flame."

Young writers must learn to use comparisons judiciously, whether they are answering the question, "How big is a piece of chalk," or trying to describe Tetrastin's highest hill, note, when she is supposed to have gone crazy about something in the opera.

Young writers should strive for simplicity, without affectation, and 50 per cent. of their reading should be as far away as possible from modern newspaper work. The more you know about many things, the better fitted you are for Journalism.

Many Americans that would not dream of working a horse without supplying regularly believe that they are doing it. They know through a lifetime without feeding it. It can't be done. Read good books.

Is newspaper work worth while? It is. More so than any other kind of work, if you get your chance and use it. And there is always a chance, always the possibility even for the youngest reporter. You are sent out perhaps, it often happens to very young men, to report the birth of a child.

The reporter with that assignment can tell how small and pink the triplets were, how the mother had to tell them apart, how the verriability of nature was shown in the baldness of one, the thick black hair of another, the eyes of the third—all this would be read. But it wouldn't do any good or make anybody think.

But if the reporter happens to add that no one but the struggling mother took any interest in those triplets, tells how he went from the triplets' cradle to the dog show, how tenderly up there a prosperous lady, with several assistants, was looking after a litter of new-born Boston bulls, he may do useful preaching more effective than that of the solemn editor.

Newspaper work is worth while because it makes it possible to spread information and, if you have any ideas WORTH WHILE, to put those ideas into the brains of millions of others.

The most important quality in the world is getting an idea from one mind into another, if it is the RIGHT idea. Newspaper work makes it possible to get an idea into millions of minds. There is no power as great as this.

The ablest men in the country, regardless of newspaper experience, should be engaged as teachers in colleges of Journalism. It is not what the college teaches you about type, or headlines, or methods constantly changing that counts. It all depends how the college, the man at the head, teaches you to THINK, to look at the world, its injustice and hardship, its undeveloped possibilities.

Every human being born on this earth, appreciating what he does before him suffered to make life here endurable, should have ambition to leave the world a little better than he found it. Newspaper work makes that possible.

Is newspaper work to be recommended to the young man that would like to get rich? No. Newspaper work is dangerous. Success depends on keen emotion, feeling vividly and describing earnestly what is seen. Youth feels strongly; age does not.

The good descriptive reporter is admired by all, and is found later with a pipe in his mouth at the copy desk; his little bubble has burst. He FELT and wrote well at first. That left him. But if he has the right ambition and has really done his best he need not mind.

The good work that he did is going on, far from his little pad of copy paper. He may comfort himself with the poet's description of the grapevine in Winter on the hillside, withered, dry and desolate, but comforted by the knowledge that the grapes are born in Summer, squeezed into wine, were at that moment making people feel remarkably cheerful elsewhere.

PHILOSOPHY OF THE BEES

By Garrett P. Serviss

A BEEKEEPER in Bordenstown, N. J., who "takes a slight interest in the autonomy" writes as follows: "Is the sun closer to Taurus in the Spring? Milton in Paradise Lost, book I, says: 'As bees in Springtime, when the sun with Taurus rises, pour forth their populous youth about the hive in clusters.' etc. Now, being a beekeeper, I should like to know if the sun is closer to Taurus in the Spring, or is it just a poet's fancy? Milton knew something about bees, for in another place he speaks of 'the female bee who feeds her husband drone.'"

I am glad to make even a distant acquaintance with a man who reads and quotes Milton. He is like one who looks over the crowding hills to the lone white peaks behind them. It was no mere poetic fancy of Milton that the sun rides with Taurus in the Springtime. He borrowed the idea from the ancient poets of Rome and Greece, who placed Taurus in the course of the Spring months.

Owing to the procession of the equinoxes the sun's apparent path in the sky shifts westward along the equator of the heavens about 30 degrees every 2,300 years, so that the sun does not now "ride with Taurus" at just the same time in the year that it did twenty centuries ago. Nevertheless, it is still nearer Taurus in the course of the Spring months.

ENGLAND NEEDS "SURPLUS" WOMEN; NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

Hon. Mrs. Masterman Shows There Is Plenty of Work Left and Plenty of Opportunities

By Hon. Mrs. C. F. G. MASTERMAN

(In this closely reasoned and well-argued paper, Mrs. Masterman shows the need of surplus women in the world, and demonstrates that this so-called problem is no new matter.)

LONDON, Sept. 15.—There is one observation that no one seems to have made over the "excess" or "surplus" of women in England.

It is why it is not only a million but a half.

Before the war the excess of women over men was a million and a half. The loss of young men in the war was about a million. What happened to the missing half-million women? Did they die of influenza? Or is the excess of boys babies born in the war (there always is an excess of boy babies, war or no war) being safeguarded, raised, received to from the early seamen?

This, however, is by the way. The thing to be faced is that this "excess" or "surplus" is not a new problem. It is an enlarged form of an old one. There has been in England an excess of women over men ever since there has been a census. This is due partly to the greater mortality among boys babies, and partly to the greater longevity of women.

There are more women over fifty alive in England than men over fifty, a fact that no one who reads the lives of some of our most famous men would be likely to guess.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

An Appeal For Beer

Editor Boston American:

I am writing to you to see if you can do something about stopping moonshining. I think the law ought to let the people have a drink of good beer, and if you find your Fall River or New Bedford terrible here. Hundreds are arrested for drunkenness, and people that never used to go in saloons are drinking moonshine, it is so easy to get.

Putting aside for the moment the moral and religious aspect of the question, moonshining, whether open and legalized, as in the East, place and unaccompanied, as in the West, is only possible on a large scale in times of great prosperity. If a man finds it difficult to maintain one family he is not going to set up a second, and if a woman finds it difficult to maintain herself, she is unlikely to add a child to her burdens.

Polygamy is a danger or possibility—neither to New England nor to the United States. It is not a "solution."

But if any particular girl decides to renounce the possibility of marriage, she still has a very large number of other possibilities for her to choose from, and she can, if she likes, ring the changes. Probably she will be obliged to work; the after-war world cannot carry many passengers. The same necessity lies on the married woman, but she works at home. But the single woman can choose her work, and take work that involves traveling or work that keeps her at home. And if at any time she feels called upon to throw up her work and go to the rescue of her husband, she can do so. If she wishes to emigrate she will undoubtedly find, in the loose texture of overseas society, more scope and openings than she finds at home, provided she is trained and capable. It might be added that the unmarried and incapable are useless everywhere, and as unpleasantly so.

So the girl of marriageable age is confronted. In the first place, she can choose to marry, the odds are still about seven to one in favor of her doing so. If not, she is still, if she chooses, an extremely useful and necessary person.

If the world cannot get along without mothers, neither can it get along without single women. It is real shortcoming that it does not recognize it.

JOHN F. FLAHERTY.

Editor Boston American:

Please accept my congratulations on the success of the annual swimming races of the Boston Athletic Association. Apparently from where I sat it was the largest attendance ever.

Green Bette is a very fine swimmer. I hope he will win the 100 yard race. I hope he will win the 100 yard race.

RUSSIANS BATTLE AGAINST DEATH

By Joseph Irwin France

(From the Russian's Moscow diary.)

(Copyright, 1921, by the Bostonian.)

Moscow, July 15, 1921. (Moscow, July 15, 1921.)

The offices of the Russian Government are in various parts of the city of Moscow, in old office buildings or hotels. Only a very few of the officials have offices in the Kremlin, and there only in the older buildings. The Government officials avoid anything which might look like display and seem to have special regards for the fine palace, public buildings and art treasures, for the care of which they are now responsible. They work under the most primitive conditions and live unostentatiously in the simplest of homes.

The Far Eastern question and the relationship which seemed to be developing to the south of Russia seemed a new importance to me after I had considered the subject matter of my most enlightening talk.

I had a long and most interesting talk a few days later with the Commissioner of Foreign Trade, before the revolution one of the most important business men of Russia. He does not speak English, but spoke with great clarity and force in Russian about the possible trade relations between the United States and Russia.

Water and sewage systems were out of repair in many places because of lack of pipes for repair work, and soap was almost entirely lacking in Russia for over a long period. It is very scarce and expensive in Russia, and even toilet paper is a luxury.

To get control of typhus and cholera, which threatened to devastate large areas of Russia, under such circumstances, was a Herculean undertaking and could not have been accomplished but for the remarkable co-operation effected by the Health Commission's educational campaign.

Dr. Semashko has the walls of his private office covered with charts which show the decline in disease after this work was undertaken. He has a chart on which is made a record of the disease, the communicable disease, especially typhus and cholera. In spite, however, of the most vigorous work, cholera has broken out again, especially in the Volga region, where the famine is most acute. I believe that the government will be obliged to prevent the typhus and cholera from spreading to the districts without food disinfectants and drugs. Russia is in desperate need of quinine, iodine and, indeed, of almost all kinds of remedies and chemicals for the cure and prevention of disease.

A reasonable amount of cleanliness has been secured under circumstances that would have tried the best resources of the most experienced people in the world. There was a marked falling off of the public health in the public places made free.

I was compelled on an occasion to enter the tiny hallways of a very old building in one of Russia's small towns. In this building, the public halls of the town, to tell, and I watched the people, men, women and young mothers with children, peasants, youths and maidens, all clean and dressed in the most modest and grateful for the simple blessing of a free bathing place even in the most remote village.

It was a very fine sight to see the people, men, women and young mothers with children, peasants, youths and maidens, all clean and dressed in the most modest and grateful for the simple blessing of a free bathing place even in the most remote village.

CAN FIGHT IF THERE IS NEED OF WAR

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

WHATEVER other kind of stuff he may be, man is certainly a fighting animal.

If he were not, we would never have had any wars.

And, as for the future, there would need to be no laquing of the nations and no conferences looking towards disarmament in order to forward the cause of peace on earth.

More commercial treaties of nations and the seeking of outlets for surplus of population and of industrial product would not in themselves bring the peoples together in armed conflict—war is not YOU, O gentler reader, so ready to fight!

Or is man hereafter fight for you, and then to be glorified as heroes especially if they die in the process of proving that man has not yet evolved beyond the fighting stage? Recall your study of history at school, and you will remember that it was mainly a record of the wars waged by the different nations!

How splendid in Man, the Child of God!

And, lest we lose all faith in human progress towards God-likeness, we are told to note that though wars have grown more fierce with the help of science and invention, they have not become less frequent with the centuries!

The Fighting Spirit

Heavily, please note that we habitually allow our soldiers to monopolize all terms of "heroism" so that the great men of the glorious commonwealth were not even to your mind.

One does not begrudge them their fighting spirit, merely typifies their own. We praise ourselves in honoring them!

These men, however, you will find still further proof of our certain nearness to the savage, despite our vaunt of superior civilization.

Now that you have "inside" information, kindly consider the cause I tempt you find there for avowedly peace-loving people, like the teeming millions of India and the swarming masses of China.

Here is half of the human race, when we feel to be inferior, largely because (if Woodrow Wilson and his followers were phrased) they are spiritually too proud to fight.

By that same standard, there are many who despise the Jews, because of their one-time Aryan people (like their fellow countrymen of India and China) are not supposed to hate the smell of powder.

And yet—they can fight. If there is a need, they will.

As witness the statistics lately published by the War Record Bureau of the State Department of New York. This will inform you to those who have had occasion to become informed regarding the shining military record of the Jews.

Stars and Stripes

Most of the people who think they would run the world better than it is being run are sitting at home and dreaming that they have built.

Society was invented by a couple of women who wanted to keep something from their neighbors.
